THE TONE

Warm, human and honest — like explaining something to a friend, not reading ad copy. No hype, no hard sell. The sentences are short because they are spoken, not read. Let them breathe.

READING NOTES

Each line is timed to what happens on screen. The duration on the left is how long that line has in the picture — treat it as a target, not a cage. The gaps between lines are real silence in the cut; you do not need to fill them.

HOW TO SAY IT

Revel	REV -uhl — as in “revelry”. Never “re-VEL”.
lets revel dot io	Written out on purpose. Say it as the address: “let’s revel dot I-O”.
R S V P	Spelled out, letter by letter: “are-ess-vee-pee”.
Q R code	Spelled out: “cue-are code”.
V A T	Spelled out: “vee-ay-tee”.
Stripe	The payment company. English, as written.
Mira, Ren, Noa, Jordan, Bea, Lena, Felix, Paul	Characters in the demos. Say them naturally.

1 Episode one. Publishing your first event. We're the
00:00–00:08
8.4 s organizer of a small club, and tonight we're putting our next night on the calendar.

— 1.2 s of silence —

2 The event form asks the questions a real night needs
00:10–00:31
21.6 s answered: what, when, where. Then two separate dials.
Visibility is who can find the page: everyone, people with the link, or only members. Event type is who's allowed to come: a public page with members-only entry is a real choice. Leave tickets off, and it's a free R S
V P

3 Then a couple of lines about the night. Where it is: the 00:32–00:41
9.9 s city comes from your club, the street is yours to type.
And how many people fit. Save it. The rest can wait.

— 1.0 s of silence —

4 It saves as a draft. Nothing is public yet, so you can add
00:43–00:50
7.8 s a cover, a schedule, a potluck list, and get it right first.

5 One click publishes it, and the night is open.
00:51–00:54
3.3 s

— 2.0 s of silence —

6 And this is what your people see: the night, the place,
00:56–01:03
6.8 s how many spots are left, and a button to say they're coming.

7 From a blank form to a live page, in a couple of minutes.
01:03–01:12
8.3 s Revel is free and open source. Find it at letsrevel dot io.

End of script — 7 lines, 72.5 s of picture.
