

REVEL, IN DEPTH · EPISODE 15

Selling a ticket, start to finish

Narration script · English

VIDEO FILE	RUNTIME	LINES	WORDS	LANGUAGE
ep-selling-a-ticket.mp4	67.4 s	6	157	English

THE TONE

Warm, human and honest — like explaining something to a friend, not reading ad copy. No hype, no hard sell. The sentences are short because they are spoken, not read. Let them breathe.

READING NOTES

Each line is timed to what happens on screen. The duration on the left is how long that line has in the picture — treat it as a target, not a cage. The gaps between lines are real silence in the cut; you do not need to fill them.

HOW TO SAY IT

Revel	REV -uhl — as in “revelry”. Never “re-VEL”.
lets revel dot io	Written out on purpose. Say it as the address: “let’s revel dot I-O”.
R S V P	Spelled out, letter by letter: “are-ess-vee-pee”.
Q R code	Spelled out: “cue-are code”.
V A T	Spelled out: “vee-ay-tee”.
Stripe	The payment company. English, as written.
Mira, Ren, Noa, Jordan, Bea, Lena, Felix, Paul	Characters in the demos. Say them naturally.

1 Episode fifteen. Selling a ticket, start to finish. Setting the price, taking the money, and confirming it came in.

00:00–00:07
7.5 s

— 2.1 s of silence —

2 A tier is a price and a way to pay. Card online, through Stripe. Bank transfer, with your instructions on the ticket. Cash at the door. Or free. And a fixed price, or pay what you can, with a floor and a ceiling.

00:10–00:23
13.8 s

— 0.9 s of silence —

3 Twelve euros, by bank transfer. The instructions you type here go on the buyer's ticket. Twenty seats, and save. There it is, next to the other two.

00:24–00:34
9.7 s

— 4.1 s of silence —

4 The buyer picks it, and gets a pending ticket with your instructions on it. It counts toward capacity, but it's not valid at the door yet.

00:38–00:47
8.5 s

— 3.9 s of silence —

5 When the transfer lands, one click confirms it. The ticket goes active, the buyer is told, and the numbers at the top follow.

00:50–00:58
8.1 s

6 Every payment method, one ticket list. Revel is free and open source. Find it at lets revel dot io.

00:59–01:06
7.4 s

End of script — 6 lines, 67.4 s of picture.