THE TONE

Warm, human and honest — like explaining something to a friend, not reading ad copy. No hype, no hard sell. The sentences are short because they are spoken, not read. Let them breathe.

READING NOTES

Each line is timed to what happens on screen. The duration on the left is how long that line has in the picture — treat it as a target, not a cage. The gaps between lines are real silence in the cut; you do not need to fill them.

HOW TO SAY IT

Revel	REV -uhl — as in “revelry”. Never “re-VEL”.
lets revel dot io	Written out on purpose. Say it as the address: “let’s revel dot I-O”.
R S V P	Spelled out, letter by letter: “are-ess-vee-pee”.
Q R code	Spelled out: “cue-are code”.
V A T	Spelled out: “vee-ay-tee”.
Stripe	The payment company. English, as written.
Mira, Ren, Noa, Jordan, Bea, Lena, Felix, Paul	Characters in the demos. Say them naturally.

1 Episode twelve. Your account, your data. The settings a person actually gets to keep, seen as a regular user.

00:00–00:08

7.6 s

— 1.1 s of silence —

2 Your name the way you want it said, your pronouns, your language. Save it, and that's how Revel greets you from now on. Organizers see what you choose to share, and nothing more.

00:09–00:20

10.9 s

3 Dietary needs live in your profile, entered once. Peanuts, an allergy. Every potluck and dinner you join can plan around it, and you decide whether it's shared or kept private for the organizer.

00:20–00:33

12.6 s

— 1.1 s of silence —

4 Notifications on your terms. Which channels, and whether it's right away or a daily digest, at the hour you pick.

00:34–00:41

7.5 s

— 1.7 s of silence —

5 Two-factor sign-in with any authenticator app. Scan the code, or type the secret, and your account has a second lock.

00:43–00:51

7.7 s

— 1.0 s of silence —

6 And the two buttons every platform should have. Export everything about me, and delete my account. Both are real, both are yours, and neither needs a support ticket.

00:52–01:02
